

Haldex, Landskrona, Schweden — New doors installation

Albany RR600 – ASSA ABLOY Entrance Systems is driven to meet Global Automotive Supplier's High Performance Door needs

Formed in 1985 with the merger of four Swedish companies, Haldex is a leading global manufacturer of brake systems for heavy trucks, AWD systems for cars, and hydraulic power systems for construction equipment.

Haldex operates manufacturing facilities in Sweden, Brazil, Germany, Great Britain, and India, with the majority of its manufacturing located in the United States.
Headquartered in Stockholm, Haldex is driven to provide innovative solutions to the automotive industry that improve safety, the environment, and vehicle dynamics.
When Haldex built their new production facility in Landskrona, Sweden, they turned to ASSA ABLOY Entrance Systems to provide them with an industrial door that could meet their exacting requirements.
"We knew from experience that doors from ASSA ABLOY Entrance Systems maintain a very high level of quality and are very reliable," remarked Goran Karlsson of Haldex.

With large trucks and other heavy-duty machinery being driven through the 5.1m x 4.5m doorway over 100 times each day, Haldex needed a door that would open quickly and still be durable enough to function reliably in their challenging environment.

Haldex chose ASSA ABLOY Entrance Systems technologically advanced Albany RR600 High Performance Industrial Door. Fast and reliable, the Albany RR600 is the door of choice for a variety of demanding industries when meeting a high level of requirements is critical.

"When the Albany RR600 was presented to us it was a simple choice. With new technology, attractive design, and quiet, smooth operation all in the same door, it was quite simply a door we wanted.

ASSA ABLOY Entrance Systems was an obvious choice when it was time to invest in new doors." Karlsson commented.
