

Halloren Chocolate Factory, Halle — New doors installation

Albany RR300 Plus – Stories to Savor at the Halloren Chocolate Factory

Founded in 1804, the Halloren Chocolate Factory is the oldest chocolate factory still in operation in Germany. With 328 employees, the company had a sales turnover of 30.1 million euros in 2007. In continual development, the Helloren Chocolate Factory was privatized again in 1992 by the Berliner Treuhand.

In 2007, the opening of the glass fabric allowed visitors to view the actual production processes of the chocolates and sweets that are exported to at least 25 different countries.

Specific hygiene and cleanliness regulations must be followed in the food industry. In order to efficiently run production, the Halloren Chocolate Factory wanted door solutions that would support these conditions.

The company decided that ASSA ABLOY Entrance Systems Albany RR300 Plus fulfilled these requirements exactly. With smooth, easy to clean, highly transparent door curtain surfaces, Albany RR300 Plus doors offer isolated room and temperature separation.

Draft and the accompanying intrusion of dirt and particles, even when production is in full swing, are easily prevented, a feature of fundamental importance for the food industry. Food production, therefore, runs smoothly, work conditions and room temperature are improved, and energy costs, due to stabilized room temperatures in the Helloren Chocolate Factory, are continually reduced.
