An architectual masterpiece with a local touch

Utilizing swing doors with a push plate to complete a revolving door application is an entrance solution that add convenience for disabled.

Background

Gaylord Palms Hotel and Conference Center in Orlando, Florida signature architectural feature is a 4.5-acre enclosed glass atrium featuring several themed environments depicting popular Florida destinations like Key West and the Everglades.

Challenge

- To create a comfortable, inviting indoor environment where the air temperature can be controlled despite the large atrium
- To compliment the architectural design of the hotel and enhance the aesthetics of the lobby, which recalls a grand Florida mansion
- To provide automatic door convenience for high volume pedestrian traffic
- To save energy

Solution

- A large Besam UniTurn revolving door with break-out functionality
- Two Besam PowerSwing swing door operators, one on each side, for improved handicap accessibility

A large Besam UniTurn with a special champagne-colored finish was selected for its ability to handle a heavy traffic flow, provide substantial energy savings by preventing conditioned air loss, and keep the indoor temperature comfortable for guests and employees.

A custom mosaic floor not only surrounds the revolving door, but is also continues all the way through the entrance.
